短文改错(共一题,每处错误 1 分,计 5 分)

My friend Alexander is having a wonderful time at university. It's the freedom that he likes—he doesn't live at the home. Actually, he and his parents didn't get on well before he left home. They made him study for three hours every evening, give him very little pocket money, and didn't allow him to go out. He's much happier now, and he goes out a lot with his friends, despite not have much money. He's studying in London, and sharing a flat with three boys there. He doesn't always pass his exam, though, and his teachers have told him to study harder in future. The problem is exams that he hasn't much time, because he has a part-time job to help pay the university fees. He has no idea what kind \wedge job to look for when he finishes his course, so he'll probably do some travelling and get seasonal of or temporary work.

书面表达(共二题,计 25 分)

(A) One possible version:

Dear Sir / Madam,

I'm writing to apply for the position of a delivery person as advertised in "The Daily Post" on the 17th of January.

I'm a seventeen-year-old student in a senior high school. I believe I'm suitable for the job as I have a moped licence and have been riding a moped for over a year.

In addition, I have some experience in the delivery business. I worked as a delivery boy between July and August in a pizza restaurant last year. I was very reliable and always punctual. In fact, my employer there will be able to tell you what a polite and pleasant manner I had with customers. I believe these qualities make me suitable for the job.

I hope that my application will be taken into consideration. I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours faithfully,
John Spicer

(B) One possible version:

I don't believe that books will be replaced by modern media, such as films, radio, TV and the Internet. Firstly, we have more leisure time than we used to, and people are generally living longer, which means there's more time to read books. As well as this, there's the strength of the book as a tradition. We're usually not aware of the role of traditions in our modern world, but they can have a very strong pull on us. Added to this, the book is such a practical tool: it doesn't cost very much, it's usually small enough to carry around, and it can easily be revisited. In conclusion, we'll never go without books, because they've served us so well for so long.
